

The mental model: camps, not magic

- A process normally speaks to processes in its own node.
- A distributed node gives it a route to another camp.
- It does not remove networking problems. It makes them visible.

For every connection we need:

- 1 a node name and hostname,
- 2 a route to EPMD,
- 3 a route to the distribution port,
- 4 the same cookie.

